

African-American

Pioneers in

Anthropology

Edited by

Ira E. Harrison and

Faye V. Harrison

University of Illinois Press • Urbana and Chicago

Contents

Acknowledgments

Introduction: Anthropology, African Americans, and the Emancipation of a Subjugated Knowledge

Faye V. Harrison and Ira E. Harrison 1

1. Caroline Bond Day: Pioneer Black Physical Anthropologist

Hubert B. Ross, Amelia Marie Adams, and Lynne Mallory Williams

37

2. Feminism and Black Culture in the Ethnography of Zora Neale Hurston

Gwendolyn Mikell

51

3. Louis Eugene King, the Anthropologist Who Never Was

Ira E. Harrison

70

4. Laurence Foster: Anthropologist, Scholar, and Social Advocate

Yolanda Moses

85

5. W. Montague Cobb: Physical Anthropologist, Anatomist, and Activist

Lesley M. Rankin-Hill and Michael L. Blakey

101

6. Katherine Dunham: Anthropologist, Artist, Humanist Joyce Aschenbrenner	137
7. Ellen Irene Diggs: Coming of Age in Atlanta, Havana, and Baltimore A. Lynn Bolles	154
8. Across Class and Culture: Allison Davis and His Works Dallas L. Browne	168
9. St. Clair Drake: Scholar and Activist Willie L. Baber	191
10. Arthur Huff Fauset, Campaigner for Social Justice: A Symphony of Diversity Carole H. Carpenter	213
11. Skeletons in the Anthropological Closet: The Life and Work of William S. Willis Jr. Peggy Reeves Sanday	243
12. Hubert B. Ross, the Anthropologist Who Was Ira E. Harrison	265
13. The Continuing Dialogue: The Life and Work of Elliot Skinner as Exemplar of the African-American/African Dialectic Cheryl Mwaria	274
Notes on Contributors	293