Acknowledgments

I would like to thank Lita Osmundsen for her judicious organization of the Seventy-sixth Burg Wartenstein Symposium and for her technical assistance during the preparation of this volume. All of the contributors are grateful to the Wenner-Gren Foundation for Anthropological Research for awarding a grant to assist its publication. Throughout our discussions at Burg Wartenstein, John Osmundsen enlightened us with relevant materials from the natural sciences, and Beverly Stoeltje served ably as rapporteuse. Victor and Edith Turner hosted a followup meeting that clarified our collective goals, and Tanya Sugarman MacAloon and Sophia S. Morgan gave me valuable editorial advice. Finally I extend thanks to the Institute for the Study of Human Issues and to the Social Sciences Collegiate Division, University of Chicago, for their editorial and clerical support.
