
Contemporary Futures

Perspectives from social anthropology

Edited by Sandra Wallman

London and New York

Contents

List of contributors	ix
Acknowledgements	xi
Introduction: Contemporary Futures Sandra Wallman	1

Part I Perspectives on industrial society

1 The death of the future David Lowenthal	23
2 Trapped in the present: the past, present and future of a group of old people in East London Guro Huby	36
3 Posterity and paradox: some uses of time capsules Brian Durrans	51
4 On predicting the future: parish rituals and patronage in Malta Jeremy Boissevain	68

Part II Perspectives on non-industrial society

5 Lines, cycles and transformations: temporal perspectives on Inuit action Jean L. Briggs	83
6 Going there and getting there: the future as a legitimating charter for life in the present C. Bawa Yamba	109
7 Time past, time present, time future: contrasting temporal values in two Southeast Asian societies Signe Howell	124
8 Saving the rain forest? Contested futures in conservation Paul Richards	138

Part III Perspectives on the future of anthropology

9	Sustainable anthropology: ecology and anthropology in the future	157
	Peter Harries-Jones
10	Reproducing anthropology	172
	Marilyn Strathern
11	The Marabar Caves, 1920–2020	190
	Robert Patne
12	A future for social anthropology?	208
	Raymond Firth
	Name index	225
	Subject index	227