

THE IDEOLOGIES OF CLASS

---

Social Relations in Britain
1880–1950

ROSS MCKIBBIN

CLARENDON PRESS · OXFORD

18 21

CONTENTS

---

|                                                                                               |     |
|-----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-----|
| ABBREVIATIONS                                                                                 | xii |
| 1 Why was there no Marxism in Great Britain?                                                  | 1   |
| 2 Arthur Henderson as Labour Leader                                                           | 42  |
| 3 The Franchise Factor in the Rise of the Labour Party                                        | 66  |
| 4 Working-class Gambling in Britain, 1880–1939                                                | 101 |
| 5 Work and Hobbies in Britain, 1880–1950                                                      | 139 |
| 6 Class and Poverty in Edwardian England                                                      | 167 |
| 7 The Economic Policy of the Second Labour Government, 1929–1931                              | 197 |
| 8 The ‘Social Psychology’ of Unemployment in Inter-war Britain                                | 228 |
| 9 Class and Conventional Wisdom: The Conservative Party and the ‘Public’ in Inter-war Britain | 259 |
| Conclusion                                                                                    | 294 |
| INDEX                                                                                         | 303 |