

Anthropological Theory in North America

Edited by
E. L. Cerroni-Long

Foreword by Vesna V. Godina

BERGIN & GARVEY
Westport, Connecticut • London

CONTENTS

Foreword Vesna V. Godina	vii
Introduction
Anthropology at Century's End E. L. Cerroni-Long	1
Critical Issues
Paradigms Refound: The Structure of Anthropological Revolutions Paul Bohannan, Mari Womack, and Karen Saenz	19
The "World System" of Anthropology and "Professional Others" Pamela J. Asquith	33
Maladaptation: A Challenge to Relativism Robert B. Edgerton	55
Science, Objectivity, Morality Marvin Harris	77
Culture Is Not Everything Roy D'Andrade	85

Theoretical Perspectives

Causal Individualism and the Unification of Anthropology Tim O'Meara	105
A Realist/Postmodern Concept of Culture Joseph A. Maxwell	143
Immanent Holism: On Transfer of Knowledge from Global to Local Peter Harries-Jones	175
Toward an Anthropological Theory of Natural Resource Management in Indigenous Communities Daniel M. Cartledge	197
Recapturing Anthropology in Marginal Communities Parin A. Dossa	213
Human Materialism: A Paradigm for Analyzing Sociocultural Systems and Understanding Human Behavior Paul J. Magnarella	235

Conclusion

Forecasting Theory: Problems and Exemplars in the Twenty-First Century Stanley R. Barrett	255
Index	283
Contributors	295