

Practicing Military Anthropology

Beyond Expectations and Traditional Boundaries

Edited by Robert A. Rubinstein,
Kerry Fosher, and Clementine Fujimura

 Kumarian Press
An Imprint of Stylus Publishing

Contents

Acknowledgments	vii
Preface	ix
Introduction: Exploring Military Anthropology	1
Robert A. Rubinstein, Kerry Fosher, and Clementine Fujimura
1 Archaeological Ethics and Working for the Military	9
Laurie W. Rush
2 “Living the Dream”: One Military Anthropologist’s Initiation	29
Clementine Fujimura
3 A Day in the Life of the Marine Corps Professor of Operational Culture	45
Paula Holmes-Eber
4 The Road Turnley Took	65
Jessica Glicken Turnley
5 Pebbles in the Headwaters: Working Within Military Intelligence	83
Kerry Fosher
6 Ethnicity and Shifting Identity: The Importance of Cultural Specialists in US Military Operations	101
Christopher Varhola
7 Master Narratives, Retrospective Attribution, and Ritual Pollution in Anthropology’s Engagements With the Military	119
Robert A. Rubinstein
References	135
Editors and Contributors	141
Index	145