

Street Vending in the Neoliberal City

A Global Perspective on the Practices and Policies of a Marginalized Economy

Sondersammelgebiet
Volks- & Völkerkunde
in Zusammenarbeit mit der DFG

Edited by Kristina Graaff and Noa Ha

berghahn
NEW YORK • OXFORD
www.berghahnbooks.com

Contents

List of Illustrations	vii
Introduction. Street Vending in the Neoliberal City: A Global Perspective on the Practices and Policies of a Marginalized Economy Kristina Graaff and Noa Ha	1
Part I. Responding to Urban and Global Neoliberal Policies
Chapter 1. Flexible Families: Latina/o Food Vending in Brooklyn, New York Kathleen Dunn	19
Chapter 2. Street Vending and the Politics of Space in New York City Ryan Thomas Devlin	43
Chapter 3. Creative Resistance: The Case of Mexico City's Street Artisans and Vendors Veronica Crossa	59
Part II. Street Vending and Ethnicity
Chapter 4. Metropolitan Informality and Racialization: Street Vending in Berlin's Historical Center Noa Ha	81
Chapter 5. Selling Memory and Nostalgia in the Barrio: Mexican and Central American Women (Re)Create Street Vending Spaces in Los Angeles Lorena Muñoz	101

Chapter 6. Ethnic Contestations over African American Fiction: The Street Vending of Street Literature in New York City Kristina Graaff	117
Part III. The Spatial Mobility of Urban Street Vending
Chapter 7. The Urbanism of Los Angeles Street Vending Kenny Cupers	139
Chapter 8. Selling in Insecurity, Living with Violence: Eviction Drives against Street Food Vendors in Dhaka and the Informal Politics of Exploitation Benjamin Etzold	164
Chapter 9. The Street Vendors Act and Pedestrianism in India: A Reading of the Archival Politics of the Calcutta Hawker Sangram Committee Ritajyoti Bandyopadhyay	191
Part IV. Historical Accounts of Street Vending
Chapter 10. Street Vending, Political Activism, and Community Building in African American History: The Case of Harlem Mark Naison	219
Chapter 11. The Roots of Street Commerce Regulation in the Urban Slave Society of Rio de Janeiro, Brazil Patricia Acerbi	233
Index	250