

Piracy and Captivity in the Mediterranean

1550–1810

Edited by Mario Klarer

Contents

Figures	viii
Acknowledgments	ix
Notes on contributors	x
Introduction	1
MARIO KLARER
PART 1
Labor and Law	23
1 Trading identities: Balthasar Sturmer's Verzeichnis der Reise (1558) and the making of the European Barbary captivity narrative	25
MARIO KLARER
2 Unkind dealings: English captivity narratives, commercial transformation, and the economy of unfree labor in the early modern period	56
DANIEL VITKUS
3 Ambivalences of recognition: The position of the Barbary corsairs in early modern international law and international politics	76
WALTER RECH
4 "Free, unfree, captive, slave": António de Saldanha, a late sixteenth-century captive in Marrakesh	99
PETER MARK

PART 2

Home and Hybridity 111

- 5 “Renegades”: Converts to Islam in American
Barbary captivity narratives of the 1790s 113

ANNA DIAMANTOULI

- 6 Identity crises of homecomers from the Barbary Coast 128

ROBERT SPINDLER

- 7 “Arab speculators,” states, and ransom slavery in the Western Sahara 144

CHRISTINE E. SEARS

PART 3

Diplomacy and Deliverance 165

- 8 Michael Heberer: A prisoner of the Ottoman navy 167

ROBERT REBITSCH

- 9 Piracy, diplomacy, and cultural circulations in the Mediterranean 186

KHALID BEKKAOUI

- 10 Confraternity models in the “redemption of slaves”
in Europe: The Broederschap der alderheylighste
Dryvuldigheyt of Bruges (Brugge) and the Scuola della
Santissima Trinità of Venice 199

ANDREA PELIZZA

PART 4

Oppositions and Otherness 221

- 11 Khayr al-Din Barbarossa:
Clashing portraits of a corsair-king 223

DIANA DE ARMAS WILSON

12	A Huguenot captive in 'Uthman Dey's court: Histoire chronologique du royaume de Tripoly (1685) and its author GILLIAN WEISS	234
13	Two Arabic accounts of captivity in Malta: Texts and contexts NABIL MATAR	258
	Index	277