

Shackled Sentiments

Slaves, Spirits, and Memories in the African Diaspora

Edited by Eric Montgomery

LEXINGTON BOOKS
Lanham • Boulder • New York • London

Contents

Acknowledgments	vii
Introduction: Slaves, Spirits, and Ritual in the African Diaspora Eric Montgomery	xi
Part I: Identity, Gender, and Slavery in the Caribbean
1 American Women Anthropologists of the Twentieth Century on Haitian Vodou: A Brief Review Natacha Giafferi-Dombre	3
2 Vodou as the Embryo and Marker of Haitian Sociohistorical Identity Nixon S. Cleoplat	21
3 Remembering Our Mothers: Black Women, Slavery, and Maternal Power in Barbados and Jamaica Maureen Elgersman Lee	41
Part II: Slavery, Possession, and Power in Africa
4 The Past Is Present: Slavery, Personhood, and Mimesis in Ewe Gorovodu and Mama Tchamba Eric J. Montgomery	59
5 Devotees and Clients: The Tumbura Cult, Spirit Possession and Medicinal Roots in the Sudan Gerasimos Makris	85

6	Living with the Ghosts of Slavery in Western Eweland: Taming Ancestral Energies and Creating Ritual Cultures Meera Venkatachalam	109
Part III: Kinship and Memories of Slavery in the African Diaspora
7	The Swahili Coast: Spirit Possession, Islam, and European Power Beatrice Nicolini	137
8	Slavery and Its Discontents: Shackled History as Spiritual Resources in Jamaica Christian Vannier	159
9	The Language of the Slave Spirits in Brazilian Umbanda: Memories of Ancestral Dignity Laura Álvarez López	177
	Shackled Sentiments: Spirits, Slaves, and Memories in the African Diaspora Eric Montgomery	195
	Index	207
	About the Contributors	215