

Reflexivity

Theory, Method, and Practice

Karen Lumsden
(with Jan Bradford and Jackie Goode)

Contents

Acknowledgements	ix
Introduction: the reflexive turn and the social sciences	1
1 Feminism and reflexivity: challenging the myth of ‘hygienic research’	25
2 New materialism, post-qualitative inquiry, post-humanism, and diffractive methodologies: exploring the ‘posts’	48
3 Reflexivity and ethnography: gendered interactions and emotions in fieldwork with boy racers	67
4 Emotions and reflexivity in social research	83
5 Reflexivity in action: journeys through the professional and the personal – part 1: reflections on ‘becoming’ an academic and imposter syndrome	105
KAREN LUMSDEN
6 Reflexivity in action: journeys through the professional and the personal – part 2: writing to inquire in the midst of thin air	121
JAN BRADFORD
7 Reflexivity in action: journeys through the professional and the personal – part 3: precarity, performativity, and politics in the life of an academic researcher	140
JACKIE GOODE

viii Contents

8	Reflexivity, power, and politics: taking sides in research	156
9	Reflecting on user engagement, dissemination, and knowledge transfer in academic and police settings	170
	Index	186