

Home and Community for Queer Men of Color

The Intersection of Race and Sexuality

Edited by
Jesús Gregorio Smith and C. Winter Han

LEXINGTON BOOKS

Lanham • Boulder • New York • London

Contents

Introduction
Home Is Where the Heart Is: Invisibility and Marginalization for Queer Men of Color	vii
Jesús Gregorio Smith
1 “Damn, I’m Dating a Lot of White Guys”: Gay Men’s Individual Narratives of Racial Sexual Orientation Development	1
Jason Crockett
2 They Don’t Date Any Dark People: The Queer Case of Gay Racism	31
C. Winter Han and Scott E. Rutledge
3 “OK, So Zion’s Not a Sissy Anymore He’s Gay, So Let’s Call Him That”: From Elementary School to College: Schooling Experiences of Black Gay Males Leading to Understanding and Self-Possession of Their Intersecting Racial and Sexual Identities	49
Michael D. Bartone
4 Gay Latino Greeks: Finding a “Familia” in a Latino Fraternity	75
Manuel Del Real
5 Gayborhood Change: The Intertwined Sexual and Racial Character of Assimilation in Chicago’s Boystown	85
Jason Orne

6	Queer Loneliness, Queer Hopefulness: Toward Restaging the Intersectionality of Gay + Asian/American from the Southwest	107
	Shinsuke Eguchi
7	Navigating the Spaces between Racial/Ethnic and Sexual Orientation: Black Gay Immigrants' Experiences of Racism and Homophobia in Montréal, Canada	123
	Sulaimon Giwa, Kofi Norsah, and Ferzana Chaze
8	The Crime of Black Male Sexuality: Tiger Mandingo and Black Male Vulnerability	149
	Jesús Gregorio Smith
9	Experiencing Queer Spaces as a Transgender Man of Color	173
	Mario I. Suárez
	Conclusion	183
	C. Winter Han
	Index	189
	About the Contributors	197