Racialized Media

The Design, Delivery, and Decoding of Race and Ethnicity

Edited by Matthew W. Hughey and Emma González-Lesser
CONTENTS

Introduction. The “Labor” of Racialized Media: Stuart Hall and the Circuit of Culture 1
Matthew W. Hughey and Emma González-Lesser

PART I. HOW RACIALIZED MEDIA IS DESIGNED 19

1. Political Economy and the Global-Local Nexus of Hollywood 21
Minjeong Kim and Rachelle J. Brunn-Bevel

2. Redesigning a Pocket Monument: A Reparative Reading of the 2016 Twenty-Dollar-Bill Controversy 41
Catherine R. Squires and Aisha Upton

Maretta McDonald

4. Comic Forms of Racial Justice: Aesthetics of Racialized Affect and Political Critique 75
Rachel Kuo

5. The News Media and the Racialization of American Poverty 96
Martin Gilens and Niamh Costello

6. Process as Product: Native American Filmmaking and Storytelling 114
Justin de Leon

PART II. HOW RACIALIZED MEDIA IS DELIVERED 137

7. Rethinking the American Public: NPR and the Pursuit of the Ideal Latinx Listener 139
Christopher Chávez
   Carlos Alamo-Pastrana and William Hoynes

   SunAh M. Laybourn

10. #BlackLivesMatter and Twitter: Mediation as a Dramaturgical Analysis
    Leslie Kay Jones

11. Moral Framing Networks: How Moral Entrepreneurs Create Power through the Media
    Nadia Y. Flores-Yeffal and David Elkins

PART III. HOW RACIALIZED MEDIA IS DECODED

    Sonita R. Moss and Dorothy E. Roberts

13. Virtual Antiracism: Pleasure, Catharsis, and Hope in Mafia III and Watch Dogs 2
    David J. Leonard

    Michael L. Rosino

15. Dear White People: Using Film as a Catalyst for Racial Activism against Institutional Racism in the College Classroom
    Tina M. Harris, Anna M. Dudney Deeb, and Alysen Wade

Conclusion. Next Steps for Media Studies
    Emma González-Lesser and Matthew W. Hughey

Acknowledgments
References
About the Editors
About the Contributors
Index