

DOING HUMAN SERVICE ETHNOGRAPHY

Edited by
Katarina Jacobsson and Jaber F. Gubrium

FID SOZIAL- UND
KULTURANTHROPOLOGIE
in Zusammenarbeit mit der DFG

Contents

About the editors	v
Notes on contributors	vi
Introduction: What is human service ethnography? Jaber F. Gubrium and Katarina Jacobsson	1
PART I Capturing professional relevance
1 Shadowing care workers when they're 'doing nothing' Doris Lydahl	19
2 Two worlds of professional relevance in a small village Christel Avendal	35
3 Capturing the organization of emotions in child welfare decision-making Tea Torbenfeldt Bengtsson	49
PART II Grasping empirical complexity
4 Sensitizing concepts in studies of homelessness and disability Nanna Mik-Meyer	67
5 Grasping the social life of documents in human service practice Emilie Morwenna Whitaker	83
6 Debating dementia care logics Cíntia Engel, Janaina Aredes and Annette Leibing	101
PART III Challenges of multi-sitedness
7 Social worlds of person-centred, multi-sited ethnography Aleksandra Bartoszko	119
8 'Facting' in a case of concealed pregnancy Lucy Sheehan	133
9 Ethnographic challenges of fragmented human services Tarja Pösö	153
PART IV Noticings from ethnographic distance
10 Ethnographic discovery after fieldwork on troubled youth Malin Åkerström and David Wästerfors	171
11 Looking beyond the police-as-control narrative David Sausdal	191

Doing Human Service Ethnography

12	Embracing lessons from ethnography in non-Western prisons Andrew M. Jefferson	209
	Index	227