

Women and Video Game Modding

Essays on Gender and the Digital Community

Edited by BRIDGET WHELAN

STUDIES IN GAMING

Series Editor Matthew Wilhelm Kapell

FID SOZIAL UND
KULTURANTHROPOLOGIE
in Zusammenarbeit mit der DFG

McFarland & Company, Inc., Publishers
Jefferson, North Carolina

Table of Contents

Introduction BRIDGET WHELAN	1
“And nothing he has wrought shall be lost”: Examining Race and Sexuality in the Mods of Dragon Age: Inquisition JENNIFER COLLINS	9
“Mod” About You: Exploring the Use of Mods as a Storytelling Technique ANNE BETZ	36
LGBTQIA Inclusion in Dragon Age: Inquisition : Burning Down Stereotypes and Modding for Representation JESSICA HYLTON	52
Simulated Ableism: The Sims and the Lack of Disability Representation SHELLY JONES	90
Regional and Ethnic Diversity in The Sims Mods HANNA WIRMAN	114
#WeNeedDiverseLooks: Female Body Mods, Immersion and Curatorial Practices in the Gamer’s Construction of the Fantasy Self CARA MIELE	126
Game Characters as Tools for Expression: Modding the Body in Mass Effect TANJA SIHVONEN	151

vi Table of Contents

Gender-Considerate Digital Game Design LEIGH HUGHES	172
About the Contributors	207
Index	209