

Music and Digital Media

A Planetary Anthropology

Edited by Georgina Born

FID SOZIAL- UND
KULTURANTHROPOLOGIE
in Zusammenarbeit mit der DFG

UCLPRESS

Contents

List of figures	vii
List of contributors	ix
Acknowledgements	xiii
1 Introduction: music, digitisation and mediation – for a planetary anthropology Georgina Born	1
2 Soundtracks in the silicon savannah: digital production, aesthetic entrepreneurship and the new recording industry in Nairobi, Kenya Andrew J. Eisenberg	46
3 ‘In the waiting room’: digitisation and post-neoliberalism in Buenos Aires’ independent music sector Geoff Baker	90
4 Oral traditions in the aural public sphere: digital archiving of vernacular musics in North India Aditi Deo	135
5 Online music consumption and the formalisation of informality: exchange, labour and sociality in two music platforms Blake Durham and Georgina Born	177
6 Max, music software and the mutual mediation of aesthetics and digital technologies Joe Snape and Georgina Born	220
7 Remediating modernism: on the digital ends of Montreal’s electroacoustic tradition Patrick Valiquet	267

8	The dynamics of pluralism in contemporary digital art music Georgina Born	305
9	Music and intermediality after the internet: aesthetics, materialities and social forms Christopher Haworth and Georgina Born	378
10	Postlude: musical-anthropological comparativism – across scales Georgina Born	439
	Index	503