

Tracing Silences

Towards an Anthropology of the Unspoken and Unspeakable

Edited by

Ana Dragojlovic and Annemarie Samuels

FTD SOZIAL- UND
KULTURANTHROPOLOGIE
in Zusammenarbeit mit der DFG

Contents

Citation Information	vi
Notes on Contributors	viii
Introduction—Tracing silences: Towards an anthropology of the unspoken and unspeakable Ana Dragojlovic and Annemarie Samuels	1
1 Practising affect for haunted speakability: Triggering trauma through an interactive art project Ana Dragojlovic	10
2 Emancipatory voice and the recursivity of authentic silence: Holocaust descendant accounts of the dialectic between silence and voice Carol A. Kidron	26
3 ‘Devious silence’: Refugee art, memory activism, and the unspeakability of loss among Syrians in Turkey Evropi Chatzipanagiotidou and Fiona Murphy	46
4 Respecting silence: Longing, rhythm, and Chinese temples in an age of bulldozers Robert P. Weller	65
5 Strategies of silence in an age of transparency: Navigating HIV and visibility in Aceh, Indonesia Annemarie Samuels	82
Afterword: Haunted histories and the silences of everyday life Byron J. Good	100
Index	111