

PURE FOOD

Theoretical and Cross-Cultural Perspectives

Edited by

Paul Collinson and Helen Macbeth

FID SOZIAL- UND
KULTURANTHROPOLOGIE
in Zusammenarbeit mit der DFG

berghahn

NEW YORK • OXFORD

www.berghahnbooks.com

CONTENTS

List of Illustrations	vii
Preface	viii
Paul Collinson and Helen Macbeth
Introduction. Pure Food: Theoretical and Cross-Cultural Perspectives	1
Paul Collinson and Helen Macbeth
1. The Impurities of Purity	47
Jeremy MacClancy
2. 'Pure' Food and Food Taboos in Cross-Cultural and Human Ethological Perspective	73
Wulf Schiefenhövel
3. Food and Order: Purity, Danger and the Bayesian Brain	85
Mark Carter
4. From Concepts of Pure Food to a Healthy Diet in Greco-Roman Antiquity	95
Amalia Lejavitzer
5. Eating Pure: Ethnography and Food in 'Fitness Cultures'	109
Lorenzo Mariano and F. Xavier Medina
6. 'Pure Food' in Catering for Public Institutions: Policies and Aspirations in the City of Liverpool, England	125
Lucy Antal
7. Blood Used in Food: When, Where and Why Not?	135
Gabriel J. Saucedo Arteaga, Claudia A. Flores Mercado and Paul Collinson
8. Pure Food, Food Tourism and the Mythologising of Western Ireland	149
Paul Collinson

9. Bioethics and Pure Food: The Consumers' Dilemma in West Mexico	165
Daria Deraga
10. The Label 'Organic' as a Representation of Food Purity: A Study of an Organic Beef Farm in Oxfordshire, England	179
Helen Macbeth
Epilogue. From Pure Food to Purification: A Review of Perspectives	199
Helen Macbeth and Paul Collinson
Index	211