

Leaving the field

Methodological insights from ethnographic exits

Edited by Robin James Smith and Sara Delamont

FID SOZIAL- UND KULTURANTHROPOLOGIE
in Zusammenarbeit mit der DFG

MANCHESTER UNIVERSITY PRESS

Contents

List of contributors	page vii
Leaving the field: an editors' introduction Sara Delamont and Robin James Smith	1
Part I Entanglements and im/perfect exits
1 Finishing fieldwork in less than perfect circumstances: lessons learned in 'labyrinth' exiting Alexandra Allan and Sarah Cole	33
2 Exeunt omnes!! The case for bad exits in ethnography Sally Campbell Galman	45
3 Reflections on care and attachment in the 'departure lounge' of ethnography Alex McInch and Harry C.R. Bowles	62
4 Unfinished business: a reflection on leaving the field Gareth M. Thomas	74
5 Materia erotica : making-love among glassblowers Erin O'Connor	86
Part II Troubling the field
6 Those who never leave us Jessica Nina Lester and Allison Daniel Anders	101
7 Déjà vu et jamais vu : what happens when the field expands in ways that mean there is no exit? Dawn Mannay	113
8 Student voices 'echo' from the ethnographic field Janean Robinson, Barry Down and John Smyth	126

- 9 Public space and visible poverty: research fields without exit 139
Andrew P. Carlin
- 10 'The martial will never leave your bones': embodying
 the field of the Kung Fu family 152
George Jennings

Part III Intermissions and returns

- 11 Between open and closed: recursive exits and returns to the fuzzy field of a community library across a decade of austerity 167
Alice Corble
- 12 On the importance of intermissions in ethnographic fieldwork: lessons from leaving New York 180
Joe Williams
- 13 Can you remember? Leaving and returning to the field in longitudinal research with people living with dementia 192
Andrew Clark and Sarah Campbell
- 14 A constant apprenticeship in martial arts: the messy longitudinal dynamics of never leaving the field 205
David Calvey

Part IV Returns, responsibilities and representations after 'leaving'

- 15 A cautionary tale about 'respondent validation': the dissonant meeting of 'field self' and 'author self' 219
Daniel Burrows
- 16 Commenting on legal practice: research relationships and the impact of criticism 231
Daniel Newman
- 17 Emotional honesty and reflections on problematic positionalities
 when conducting research in another country 243
Ashley Rogers

- Index* 255