

Decolonising Curricula and Pedagogy in Higher Education

Bringing Decolonial Theory into Contact with Teaching Practice

Edited by

Shannon Morreira, Kathy Lockett, Siseko H. Kumalo and Manjeet Ramgotra

Contents

Citation Information	vii
Notes on Contributors	ix
Introduction: Decolonising Curricula and Pedagogy in Higher Education Shannon Morreira, Kathy Luckett, Siseko H. Kumalo and Manjeet Ramgotra	1
1 Resurrecting the Black Archive through the decolonisation of philosophy in South Africa Siseko H. Kumalo	19
2 Decoloniality, Spanish and Latin American studies in Australian universities: ¿es un mundo ch'ixi posible? Danielle H. Heinrichs	37
3 Decolonising sociology: perspectives from two Zimbabwean universities Simbarashe Gukurume and Godfrey Maringira	60
4 Initiating decolonial praxis: childhood studies curricula in an English university Dimitrina Kaneva, Jo Bishop and Nicole E. Whitelaw	79
5 Decolonising the school curriculum in South Africa: black women teachers' perspectives Pryah Mahabeer	97
6 Ubuntu curre in the academy: a case study from the South African experience Mlamuli Nkosingphile Hlatshwayo, Lester Brian Shawa and Sabelo Abednego Nxumalo	120
7 Place and pedagogy: using space and materiality in teaching social science in Southern Africa Shannon Morreira, Josiah Taru and Carina Truys	137

8	Methodology and academic extractivism: the neo-colonialism of the British university Melany Cruz and Darcy Luke	154
	Index	171